COUNTY MARKS 2ND FATALITY

Kentucky Girl, 18, Dies Following 2-Car Mishap

An 18-year-old Kentucky girl Saturday became Pickaway County's second traffic fatality of 1952.

She was Miss Frances Meade, 18, of Ashland, Ky., fatally hurt at about 5:30 a. m. Saturday in a two-car collision just south of the Pickaway-Franklin County line.

Miss Meade was rushed into Mercy hospital, Columbus, for emergency treatment following the smashup. She died at about 5 p. m. Saturday of severe head injuries.

The Kentucky girl was one of eight persons injured in the two-car smashup on the icy highway.

Five of the other eight persons hurt in the crash received minor injuries. Two other men, however, were taken into Columbus for treatment following the mishap and local authorities have been unable to date to determine where they were taken.

DEPUTY CARL BUDENH and State Highway Patrolman R. R. Greene, who investigated the mishap, said Bert Ann and Ralph Jason were taken to Columbus by a passing motorist, as was Miss Meade. Their conditions remain a puzzle, since they cannot be found.

Meanwhile, a driver of one of the autos involved in the fatal accident, Jack Graff, 30, of Franklin Furnace, was found guilty of drunken driving Saturday in Pickaway County common pleas court.

Graff had his driving license suspended for one year when appearing before the court of Judge William D. Radcliff, was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail. The jail term later was suspended in favor of probation.

Queen Expecting Another Heir

LONDON, March 3 — (P)—Two London newspapers have hinted that Queen Elizabeth II may be expecting her third child.

By suggesting a royal birth may be the reason for putting off the coronation until next summer, the Sunday Pictorial and Sunday Express went about as far as they could without shattering customary discretion in such matters. No one was so blunt as to say the Queen was pregnant. But they did point to a recent visit by Sir William Gilliat, famous gynecologist, to the Queen's residence.

President Books Talk For Thursday

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—President Truman will address the nation on the mutual security program at 10:30 p. m. Thursday.

The White House announced broadcast and television plans on the heels of reports that the administration has decided to fight any cut in its proposed $7.9 billion new foreign aid program. The President will send Congress his request for the military and economic aid funds at about the same time as the speech.

Merry-Go-Round X-Ray Helps Cancer Battle

CINCINNATI, March 3 — (P)—An x-ray merry-go-round has knocked out cancers in dozens of apparently hopeless cancer patients.

The second National Cancer Conference was told Monday some patients had no signs of cancer two years later. But it's too soon to call any of them cured.

The merry-go-round is a revolving chair. The patient sits in it while a powerful two million volt x-ray beam is aimed at his hidden man was guilty of drunken driving, local authorities opined he was not at fault in the fatal crash.

Radcliff and Greene said the Graff auto apparently was on its proper side of the highway at the time of the crash. The front end of the Graff car was in collision with the side of an auto operated by Bernard H. Wiley, 32, of Barborton, Miss Meade's brother-in-law.

The lawmen said the Wiley auto apparently went out of control on the icy highway and skidded sideways into the path of the Graff car.

Miss Meade was a passenger in the Wiley auto. Wiley was treated for minor injuries in Mercy hospital, Columbus, while his wife and three children were treated in Berger hospital for minor injuries.

The Kentucky girl became this county's second traffic victim. The first fatality on local highways happened Feb. 23 when Francis Daner, 48, of Adelphi died in Berger hospital following a mishap near his home three days earlier.

Insurance Fails To Cover Items Lost By Kiddies

"Let the county take care for the kids out of the insurance money."

That is the theme of persons who have not yet chipped in with donations for the youngsters of Pickaway County Children's Home, who lost a great number of personal possessions in a fire one week ago.

The tune these persons sing may not sound so bad, but the words do not fit at all.

It is true there was insurance covering the building and some property in the building at the Home which was levelled by fire.

At the same time, officials point out that not one item owned by the kiddies themselves was covered by insurance. That is the reason for the drive.

Winfield Koch, Home Superintendent, said the youngsters took time to itemize their losses last week. The list of personal losses, for which they worked to earn the money, totalled about $700.

Meanwhile, some donations are coming in at the Circleville fire department. Cash is the biggest single item taken in to date. A man tossed $25 into the fund last Saturday.

Gifts may be taken to the fire station; firemen will make collections if persons contact them.

Ohio Cooling On Taft

Stassenites See New 'Antipathy'

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—Stassen supporters claim they detect "mounting antipathy" for Senator Robert A. Taft in his home state of Ohio.

Daniel C. Gainey, head of Stassen campaign headquarters in Washington, told a reporter Ohio support for former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota for the Republican presidential nomination is "very strong."

Informed of Gainey's statement, a top Taft aide scoffed. He said Taft's Ohio strength, "according to every bit of evidence we have, has grown" since the Republican's impressive 1950 reelection victory.

Senator Taft, a leading contender for the GOP presidential nomination, faces Stassen in the May 6 Ohio primary.

Four years ago, Stassen captured nine of the 23 delegates in Ohio. Gainey would not predict how many delegates he thinks Stassen may win in the state this time.

HOWEVER, other sources in the Stassen camp said they would consider it a good showing, if they can take 10 delegates out of the 56-member Ohio delegation to the convention. Stassen has candidates for 49 of the delegates positions.

Gainey said part of the reason for what he described as slackening support for the Ohio senator rested in the candidacy of another Taft—his brother, Charles—for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Ohio.

According to this Stassen aide, some Republicans in Ohio are unhappy about the prospect of having two Tafts dominating the ticket in the state.

Gainey said he is hopeful some of the support Taft may lose will come over to Stassen. He said he expects some of it to siphon off to Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, as well.

Neither MacArthur or Eisenhower has delegates pledged to them on the ballot.

The Stassen forces regard the Ohio primary as one of their most important challenges.

Gainey said the Stassen forces intend to conduct a much broader campaign in Ohio this time than they did in 1948. Organizations to work for Stassen are being built in each of the state's congressional districts.

REDS SCREAM ANGRILY AT UN FOR 'LYING' IN TRUCE TALKS

Joe Stalin Can Wreck Truce Talks

Moscow Determined To Get Into Act At Panmunjom

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—Russia apparently is so determined to gain a role in Korean peace-making that it may wreck the truce talks in the attempt.

Some highly placed officials have offered that explanation for the present deadlock in the armistice talks at Panmunjom.

They assume, as Washington has generally assumed from the first, that the Kremlin is masterminding the Communist strategy in Korea. The Red's insistence that the Soviet Union be included in a proposed commission of "neutral" nations to police the truce is thus regarded here as a move inspired and doggedly persisted in by the Soviet government itself.

State and Defense Department authorities do not believe the North Korean and Chinese Communists want their big friend on the commission merely because it might be a nice gesture.

FIRST SIGN of a possible back-down from this position came during Monday's negotiations. When the Reds were told objections to Russia could not be removed, Chinese Col. Chang Chung-San replied the Allies had the right to reject any nominee but should give logical reasons.

United States officials said here, as UN negotiators have said in Korea, that they will never agree to accept Russia as a "neutral."

What the U. S. would agree to and what may prove to be the way out—if there is one—would be to drop the idea of a neutral commission entirely.

They would go back to the proposition originally suggested by the United Nations that the truce be supervised by a joint commission of belligerents.

Russia and the United States would then be represented in equal position, provided Russia was willing to acknowledge a belligerent status.

Moscow's interest in "getting into the act," as diplomats see it, stems from a desire to trade on peace-making credit in Korea. The Russians contend it was a suggestion by them that started the negotiations in the first place seven months ago. Technically that is correct, although other countries including the U. S. had been suggesting negotiations for many weeks before.

MARCH 11 POLL MAY INDICATE TREND

Top-Drawer Politicians Head For New Hampshire Campaign

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—An all-star cast of top politicians, including three presidential candidates, Monday were New Hampshire-bound for the home stretch battle for primary election ballots there.

Sen. Robert A. Taft and Harold E. Stassen, Republican candidates, and Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Democratic candidate, headed for some on-the-spot campaigning in the final week before New Hampshire's March 11 primary elections.

Also booked for appearance are Paul Hoffman, former economic cooperation administrator, Sens. Saltonstall and Lodge of Massachusetts, Gov. Lodge of Connecticut, and Rep. Hertz, (R-Mass.).

The state has never seen so many nationally-known figures all at once.

Entered in the primary, first of its kind in the nation, are these men or delegates pledged to them: Taft, Stassen, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, on the GOP ticket; and Kefauver and President Truman on the Democratic slate.

MAJOR INTEREST centered in the Taft-Eisenhower clash. Some observers expect a neck-and-neck race, while other predictions were that Eisenhower would win in a walk.

Recent polls show that Taft has gained. Even Eisenhower backers concede this.

And a note from MacArthur to a New Hampshire supporter may swing things even further toward Taft. An aide to MacArthur has confirmed that the general wrote: "I suggest you support Taft."

But there is interest, too, in the New Hampshire race between Mr. Truman and Kefauver. The Democratic Party organization, called into action only last Saturday, opened a vigorous campaign for the President.

A Kefauver victory could hurt him if he decided to run for reelection. He hasn't announced his plans yet.

Taft winds up a three-day tour of Wisconsin Monday with a talk in Burlington. Then he heads for

Kefauver Set For New Ohio Appearances

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—Plans are shaping up for Estes Kefauver's pre-primary speaking campaign in Ohio.

The Tennessee senator is seeking Ohio delegates to back him at the Democratic convention next summer for the party's presidential nomination. Delegates will be chosen in the state's May 6 primary.

Rep. Hays of Ohio, a Kefauver campaign manager there, said the senator is scheduled to speak in northern and eastern Ohio in late April. But first, Kefauver will appear at a Cleveland City Club luncheon April 5.

Hays said the Tennessean will be at a Belmont County Women's Democratic Club luncheon April 24 in Bridgeport. That night, he is to be in Steubenville for the 18th congressional district Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner.

Hays said he hopes to arrange speaking engagements for Kefauver in Southwest Ohio May 1-3, and it is possible that Kefauver may make a second visit to Cleveland May 2. Kefauver made several speaking appearances in Eastern Ohio last month.

Egypt's Congress Given Suspension

CAIRO, March 3 — (P)—Egypt's new Prime Minister Ahmed Naguib Hilaly Pasha announced suspension of parliament for 30 days and Monday started to purge corruption from the government.

He also began preparing for new talks with Britain on control of the Suez Canal Zone and the Sudan. Announcement of the parliamentary suspension was a first major action of the 60-year-old jurist following swearing in of his cabinet.

New Hampshire and a three-day campaign.

Stassen, in New York, said on a television program that he is not a "stalking horse" for Eisenhower, and doesn't think the general will return in time to put on a strong campaign.

But he continued to insist that Taft and Eisenhower might block each other off, in which case he hoped to win the nomination in a GOP convention deadlock.

KEFAUVER WAS in Boston Sunday keeping several speaking dates. He said one of the greatest problems facing the country is the need for a foreign policy that will insure peace. He swings into New Hampshire Tuesday to continue what he described as a "tough uphill fight" in the primary.

Sen. Russell of Georgia, newest of the Democratic candidates, said in a television interview he is in the race to the finish—but again declined to say whether he would lead a third party if Mr. Truman is nominated.

Russell, who announced his candidacy last Thursday, immediately attracted pledges of support from most of the Southern Democratic leaders who are against a renomination for Mr. Truman.

Democratic Sen. Kerr of Oklahoma, who will be a candidate if Mr. Truman does not run, said he expects "much of the South" to support Russell. But he said the Democrats are not going to split just because various groups support different candidates.

Other developments:

1. Administration cleanup boss Newbold Morris said he is not as subservient to the Justice Department as some believe. He said indictments on his findings will be handled by specially-named lawyers—not the Justice Department—and he will make his reports to President Truman and not to Attorney General McGrath, who appointed him to his job.

2. REP. KEATING (R-NY) said public hearings in a House investigation of the Justice Department probably will start around April 1 with McGrath the first witness.

Keating said the House Judiciary Subcommittee looking into the department—also to be investigated by Morris—will hold other hearings in Boston and Providence, R. I., and possibly in San Francisco, Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago.

Key point of the Truman plan to reorganize the revenue bureau is to put an end to political appointment (controlled by the Senate) of the 64 collectors and place all bureau officials except the top man under civil service.

Many of the present politically-appointed collectors have been under fire in tax scandals which have led to indictment, dismissal or resignation of 168 officials and employees of the bureau and Justice Department.

"He had the courage of his convictions to do that which he believed right. His passing will be a loss to the state of Ohio."

Said Clarence J. Brown, Blanche congressman and also a newspaper publisher:

"The world is better for Leroy S. Galvin having lived. He was my life-long friend and has left behind the priceless heritage of a good name. I join with his thousands of friends in mourning his passing."

The fierce attacks by the Communist-led Vietminh started last week 30 miles southeast of Hanoi. The French high command said the Vietminh drove with 10,000 troops from the northern mountains and with 4,000 from the south.

Legal Right To Reject Russia OKd

But Communists Say They Want Allied 'Logical Reasons'

MUNSAN, March 3 — (P)—Communist truce negotiators angrily accused the United Nations Command of lying and stalling Monday, but the Reds acknowledged the UN had a legal right to reject Russia as a neutral inspector of an armistice.

North Korean Col. Chang Chun San conceded the UN had the right to reject Russia, but insisted the Allies give logical reasons.

"We had a thoroughly unproductive and most unpleasant session," Rear Adm. R. E. Libby told newsmen after an acrimonious session of the prisoner exchange subcommittee.

At one point North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho became so angry Libby interrupted to ask him to stop screaming.

There was no indication whether the Communists were weakening in their insistence that Russia be named to a neutral supervisory commission or whether they were feeling out the Allied position.

COL. DON Darrow, who heads staff officers discussing truce supervision, and Libby both said they felt the Reds were playing a waiting game, hoping the UN will capitulate.

Darrow suggested the UN proposal for two neutral nations on each side would solve the problem immediately.

Lee touched off the verbal explosion in the prisoner exchange negotiations with a long tirade in which he accused the UN of lying about prisoner treatment.

He also charged the UN reneged on a promise to hand over information on about 44,000 prisoners the Reds claim are "military personnel of our side."

And he accused the Allies of lying when they said Sunday the Communists had repudiated an agreement to nominate neutral nations acceptable to both sides.

"Unfortunately," he said, "what has been shown by your side during these days is the fact that in addition to the raising of side issues and a complete lack of sincerity, your side further had developed its persistent stalling tactics to a surprising degree."

Libby replied: "The UN Command and the UN do not indulge in lies. We do not lie. We have not lied. We shall not lie."

Concerning the exchange of data on prisoners, Libby told the Reds "you will get that data on an exchange basis and in accordance with our agreements or you will not get it at all."

Stassenites See New 'Antipathy'

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—Stassen supporters claim they detect "mounting antipathy" for Senator Robert A. Taft in his home state of Ohio.

United States officials said here, as UN negotiators have said in Korea, that they will never agree to accept Russia as a "neutral."

What the U. S. would agree to and what may prove to be the way out—if there is one—would be to drop the idea of a neutral commission entirely.

They would go back to the proposition originally suggested by the United Nations that the truce be supervised by a joint commission of belligerents.

Russia and the United States would then be represented in equal position, provided Russia was willing to acknowledge a belligerent status.

Moscow's interest in "getting into the act," as diplomats see it, stems from a desire to trade on peace-making desire in Korea. The Russians contend it was a suggestion by them that started the negotiations in the first place seven months ago. Technically that is correct, although other countries including the U. S. had been suggesting negotiations for many weeks before.

MAJOR INTEREST centered in the Taft-Eisenhower clash.

Some observers expect a neck-and-neck race, while other predictions were that Eisenhower would win in a walk.

Recent polls show that Taft has gained. Even Eisenhower backers concede this.

And a note from MacArthur to a New Hampshire supporter may swing things even further toward Taft. An aide to MacArthur has confirmed that the general wrote: "I suggest you support Taft."

But there is interest, too, in the New Hampshire race between Mr. Truman and Kefauver. The Democratic Party organization, called into action only last Saturday, opened a vigorous campaign for the President.

A Kefauver victory could hurt him if he decided to run for reelection. He hasn't announced his plans yet.

Taft winds up a three-day tour of Wisconsin Monday with a talk in Burlington. Then he heads for

Kefauver Set For New Ohio Appearances

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—Plans are shaping up for Estes Kefauver's pre-primary speaking campaign in Ohio.

The Tennessee senator is seeking Ohio delegates to back him at the Democratic convention next summer for the party's presidential nomination. Delegates will be chosen in the state's May 6 primary.

Rep. Hays of Ohio, a Kefauver campaign manager there, said the senator is scheduled to speak in northern and eastern Ohio in late April. But first, Kefauver will appear at a Cleveland City Club luncheon April 5.

Hays said the Tennessee will be at a Belmont County Women's Democratic Club luncheon April 24 in Bridgeport. That night, he is to be in Steubenville for the 18th congressional district Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner.

Hays said he hopes to arrange speaking engagements for Kefauver in Southwest Ohio May 1-3, and it is possible that Kefauver may make a second visit to Cleveland May 2. Kefauver made several speaking appearances in Eastern Ohio last month.

2 Commie Drives Dulled By French

SAIGON, March 3 — (P)—The French Army said Sunday it had turned back a two-pronged Communist drive against French Delta positions in North Indochina, killing 500 Vietminh rebels and wounding 1,000.

The fierce attacks by the Communist-led Vietminh started last week 30 miles southeast of Hanoi. The French high command said the Vietminh drove with 10,000 troops from the northern mountains and with 4,000 from the south.

Egypt's Congress Given Suspension

CAIRO, March 3 — (P)—Egypt's new Prime Minister Ahmed Naguib Hilaly Pasha announced suspension of parliament for 30 days and Monday started to purge corruption from the government.

He also began preparing for new talks with Britain on control of the Suez Canal Zone and the Sudan. Announcement of the parliamentary suspension was a first major action of the 60-year-old jurist following swearing in of his cabinet.

MARCH 11 POLL MAY INDICATE TREND

Top-Drawer Politicians Head For New Hampshire Campaign

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—An all-star cast of top politicians, including three presidential candidates, Monday were New Hampshire-bound for the home stretch battle for primary election ballots there.

Sen. Robert A. Taft and Harold E. Stassen, Republican candidates, and Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Democratic candidate, headed for some on the spot campaigning in the final week before New Hampshire's March 11 primary elections.

Also booked for appearance are Paul Hoffman, former economic cooperation administrator, Sens. Saltonstall and Lodge of Massachusetts, Lodge of Connecticut, and Rep. Herter, (R-Mass.).

The state has never seen so many nationally-known figures all at once.

Entered in the primary, first of its kind in the nation, are these men or delegates pledged to them: Taft, Stassen, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, on the GOP ticket; and Kefauver and President Truman on the Democratic slate.

New Hampshire and a three-day campaign.

Stassen, in New York, said on a television program that he is not a "stalking horse" for Eisenhower, and doesn't think the general will return in time to put on a strong campaign.

But he continued to insist that Taft and Eisenhower might block each other off, in which case he hoped to win the nomination in a GOP convention deadlock.

KEFAUVER was in Boston Sunday keeping several speaking dates. He said one of the greatest problems facing the country is the need for a foreign policy that will insure peace. He swings into New Hampshire Tuesday to continue what he described as a "tough uphill fight" in the primary.

Sen. Russell of Georgia, newest of the Democratic candidates, said in a television interview he is in the race to the finish—but again declined to say whether he would lead a third party if Mr. Truman is nominated.

Russell, who announced his candidacy last Thursday, immediately attracted pledges of support from most of the Southern Democratic leaders who are against a renomination, for Mr. Truman.

Democratic Sen. Kerr of Oklahoma, who will be a candidate if Mr. Truman does not run, said he expects "much of the South" to support Russell. But he said the Democrats are not going to split just because various groups support different candidates.

SHOWDOWN VOTE AWAITED

Senate Panel Studying Truman Cleanup Plan

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—President Truman's plans to reorganize the scandal-plagued Internal Revenue Bureau faced a possible showdown on Capitol Hill Monday with the administration making a last-minute effort to save it.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Joseph B. Dunlap was scheduled to get in a final word for the Truman plan before the reportedly hostile Senate Expenditures Committee takes a vote on a resolution aimed at killing it.

Efforts by the administration and Congress to clean up corruption in government brought these other developments:

1. Administration cleanup boss Newbold Morris said he is not as subservient to the Justice Department as some believe. He said indictments on his findings will be handled by specially-named lawyers—not the Justice Department—and he will make his reports to President Truman and not to Attorney General McGrath, who appointed him to his job.

2. REP. KEATING (R-NY) said public hearings in a House investigation of the Justice Department probably will start around April 1 with McGrath the first witness. Keating said the House Judiciary Subcommittee looking into the department—also to be investigated by Morris—will hold other hearings in Boston and Providence, R. I., and possibly in San Francisco, Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago.

Key point of the Truman plan to reorganize the revenue bureau is to put an end to political appointment (controlled by the Senate) of the 64 collectors and place all bureau officials except the top man under civil service.

Many of the present politically-appointed collectors have been under fire in tax scandals which have led to indictment, dismissal or resignation of 168 officials and employees of the bureau and Justice Department.

Ohio Solons Pay Tribute To Roy Galvin

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—Two Ohio congressmen paid high tribute here Monday to the late Leroy S. Galvin, newspaper editor and publisher who died Saturday.

Mr. Galvin, 76, was buried in Lima Monday afternoon.

Congressman William McCullough said:

"Leroy S. Galvin was a good citizen and left behind him a monument built upon service to his community, a monument of integrity and loyalty.

"He had the courage of his convictions to do that which he believed right. His passing will be a loss to the state of Ohio.

Said Clarence J. Brown, Blanche congressman and also a newspaper publisher:

"The world is better for Leroy S. Galvin having lived. He was my life-long friend and has left behind the priceless heritage of a good name. I join with his thousands of friends in mourning his passing."

Yes—But what does it mean?

What's behind the newest bill in Congress? And what are the motives of labor's latest political maneuver? What are the subtle changes in Party policy? What's the significance of the most recent diplomatic move?

It's RAY TUCKER'S job to tell you. He has years of experience on the Washington scene, countless sources in high and low places and an uncanny knack of digging out the news behind the news. To be truly informed about the significance of Washington news, read

But Communists Say They Want Allied 'Logical Reasons'

MUNSAN, March 3 — (P)—Communist truce negotiators angrily accused the United Nations Command of lying and stalling Monday, but the Reds acknowledged the UN had a legal right to reject Russia as a neutral inspector of an armistice.

North Korean Col. Chang Chun San conceded the UN had the right to reject Russia, but insisted the Allies give logical reasons.

"We had a thoroughly unproductive and most unpleasant session," Rear Adm. R. E. Libby told newsmen after an acrimonious session of the prisoner exchange subcommittee.

At one point North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho became so angry Libby interrupted to ask him to stop screaming.

There was no indication whether the Communists were weakening in their insistence that Russia be named to a neutral supervisory commission or whether they were feeling out the Allied position.

COL. DON Darrow, who heads staff officers discussing truce supervision, and Libby both said they felt the Reds were playing a waiting game, hoping the UN will capitulate.

Darrow suggested the UN proposal for two neutral nations on each side would solve the problem immediately.

Lee touched off the verbal explosion in the prisoner exchange negotiations with a long tirade in which he accused the UN of lying about prisoner treatment.

He also charged the UN reneged on a promise to hand over information on about 44,000 prisoners the Reds claim are "military personnel of our side."

And he accused the Allies of lying when they said Sunday the Communists had repudiated an agreement to nominate neutral nations acceptable to both sides.

"Unfortunately," he said, "what has been shown by your side during these days is the fact that in addition to the raising of side issues and a complete lack of sincerity, your side further had developed its persistent stalling tactics to a surprising degree."

Libby replied: "The UN Command and the UN do not indulge in lies. We do not lie. We have not lied. We shall not lie."

Concerning the exchange of data on prisoners, Libby told the Reds "you will get that data on an exchange basis and in accordance with our agreements or you will not get it at all."

MEANWHILE, outnumbered American Sabre jets shot down two Communist Mig-15 jets and damaged five others as an estimated 250 Red fighters swept south of the Yalu.

The Sabres tangled with the swift Migs in four separate battles. The two Red jets the Air Force said were shot down boosted to 200 the number of Migs destroyed by Fifth Air Force planes in Korea, a spokesman said.

Along the scarred battlefield, Allied forces restricted action to patrol scouting. Sunday an Allied tank force muscled a two-prong squeeze on Chinese hill positions northeast and northwest of Chonwon, in Western Korea.

Cupid Uses 'Ham' To Link Divorced Pair

MIAMI, March 3 — (P)—Cupid used shortwave radio to send a Miami amateur operator a Leap Year marriage proposal from the wife who divorced him 30 years ago.

It was quite a get-together for 55-year-old Charlie Buckhorn of South Miami and his former wife Edna, who lives in Covington, Ky. "We'll make it for keeps this time," said the radio Romeo.

Buckhorn, whose call letters are W4RBQ, had become friendly with a Covington ham and had mentioned his former wife lived in that area.

Sunday, Buckhorn made contact with his Covington airwaves pal on W4CIM and asked if he had ever met his XYL. In the lingo of hams, XYL means "ex - young lady."

Then W4CIM switched over a telephone hookup to a shortwave radio transmitter and out of the loudspeaker came the voice of Buckhorn's old love.

"I wish you could see me," said Edna. "I'm sitting here in my red pajamas and even though I'm not on my knees, I'm asking you to marry me again."

"By golly, you're simply a good little woman," answered Buckhorn. "We tried it back in 1918 and it didn't work so well, but we'll make it for keeps this time."

$3 Billion Aid Given Ohio By U.S. Treasury

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—The federal government has spent nearly $3 billion in Ohio since the latter years of the Depression.

The Joint Congressional Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Federal Expenditures disclosed this in a report on federal grants-in-aid to the states from mid-1933 to the end of the 1951 fiscal year last June 30.

The committee said the government paid $2,702,040,819 into Ohio during those 18 years. Some payments went directly to the states; others to individual Ohioans under various programs.

More than $1 out of every $3 went either for unemployment relief under WPA or for World War II veterans readjustment aid.

During that same period, total government spending on such grants-in-aid programs throughout the country came to more than $58 billion.

All told, there have been nearly 150 of these programs in that time. Roughly half the Ohio total was provided in the Depression and pre-war period from fiscal 1934 through fiscal 1941.

The biggest single year was fiscal 1939, when the total reached $281,232,303.

Federal Deficit Slash Is Hinted

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—Some top government experts optimistically predict the federal deficit this year will be about $2 billion less than $8.2 billion President Truman estimated in his annual budget message in January.

Anthrax Said Under Control In Clinton

WILMINGTON, March 3 — (P)—The outbreak of anthrax among swine seems to be pretty well under control in Clinton County.

Health Commissioner Edward B. Headley said no human has caught the disease. He added that he does not think any one will get it now. Within the next few days, the health commissioner continued, the cause of last week's outbreak probably will be known.

Latest reports were that 35 farms have been quarantined in Clinton County and that 29 swine have died.

Anthrax was found on 10 of the farms. The others quarantined are adjacent to those where the disease was discovered.

Several Fayette County farms also have been quarantined "on suspicion."

$5,216 Netted To Date In Red Cross Campaign

Pickaway County's 1952 Red Cross drive had netted a total of $5,216 Monday with a dozen collecting points still outstanding.

The 1952 drive ended last Friday night, with more than 200 solicitors joining in the campaign to realize a goal of $10,855.

Officials pointed out Monday that the prospects for meeting this year's goal are good if each of the 12 areas still out has managed to meet its individual quota.

A full report of this year's fund campaign is expected later this week.

Vernie seemed puzzled. "Why me?" he asked. "I can walk!"

To Curb Reds: 'Starve' Them

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (P)—The U. S. Chamber of Commerce says the best way to kill the Communist Party in this country is to "starve" it to death financially and cut off its sources of power.

This could be done by refusing Communists jobs in virtually all branches of industry, and choking off prestige, power and high salaries by freezing them out of the entertainment, newspaper, radio and similar fields.

Lack Of Cash Stalls Cleanup Of Pollutions

COLUMBUS, March 3 — (P)—Most Ohio communities which are dumping untreated sewage into rivers would do something about it if they had the money.

Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill told a Columbus Town Meeting radio-television audience Sunday that all 31 communities ordered to adopt anti-pollution programs last June have said they would cooperate.

He said the main problem is obtaining funds to build sewage treatment plants.

The attorney general said all 78 industries cited by the state for stream pollution have agreed to "clean up" too.

Kenneth M. Lloyd, secretary of the Mahoning Valley Industrial Council in Youngstown, said industry is willing to pay sewage fees and to try to curb pollution, but that "we do not have to turn streams into a fishing haven."

Lloyd cautioned the state to "go slow" in its anti-pollution drive.

His statement came as Dr. R. E. Eschmeyer, vice president of the Sports Fishing Institute, said pollution is hurting fishing. He claimed cities and industries that say they can't stop pollution are merely stalling "because they don't want to."

God Is A Myth, Communists Say

ROME, March 3 — (P)—God is a myth, according to the "Great Soviet Encyclopedia for 1950-51," now being translated by the Polish State Publishing House of Warsaw.

Veritas, bulletin of news from behind the Iron Curtain published here by the Christian Academy of Czechoslovakia, gave two excerpts from the Soviet work.

Its definition for God: "A mythically-invented personality. Progressive materialistic and scientific opinion cannot be reconciled with faith in God. One of the highest duties of Soviet man's progressive education is the destruction of all survivals of religion and faith in God."

"Of the Old and New Testaments: In reality, both Moses and Jesus were only mythical persons. The Old and New Testaments are full of contradictions and nonsense."

Easier To Fool Adults Than Kids

LOS ANGELES, March 3 — (P)—Here's an authority who says it's easier to fool adults than it is children and dogs.

"Child is extremely perceptive of one's attitude toward him," said Dr. Milo B. Brooks, professor of pediatrics here. "Most anyone can fool adults. But no one can fool a child or a dog. They have a sense of perception far beyond ours—which we have lost through lack of use. Some women retain this sense of perception to a great degree. We call it intuition."

Pinay To Try To Form New French Panel

PARIS, March 3 — (P)—Antoine Pinay, 60-year-old conservative, said Monday he would see if he could form a new cabinet to get France out of its political and financial jam.

Pinay announced his decision to newsmen after a half-hour's talk with President Vincent Auriol.

"My first impulse was to refuse," he said, "but when the president insisted I consent to consult my friends and make an effort."

He added that when he had done that, he would give Auriol a definite reply.

France is groping for a solution to her deepening political crisis following failure of Paul Reynaud to patch together a national union coalition cabinet.

Efforts to form a new government to succeed Edgar Faure's administration had appeared stalemated after another former premier, Rene Pleven, refused even to try to cope with the manifold divisions within the French national assembly at this time.

France's financial and ministerial crisis has stalled development of Western European defense and may mean that much of the West's defense planning will have to be reshaped.

Mishap Causes Police To Go On 'Goosechase'

Circleville police were sent on a wild goose chase early Monday when workmen repaired a fire alarm box at Court street and Hayward avenue.

The fire alarm box, call number 16, was damaged early Saturday when it was struck by an auto operated by Van Smith, 44, of 239 Pearl street.

Police said the Smith auto skidded through the intersection because of icy street conditions, striking a utility pole with its right side. The firebox on the pole was damaged.

Linemen replacing the box Monday accidentally tripped the mechanism, causing an alarm to be sent out. Firemen, who knew the box was being repaired, stayed in the station, although city police rushed to the scene with sirens blaring.

Cupid Uses 'Ham' To Link Divorced Pair

MIAMI, March 3 — (AP)—Cupid used shortwave radio to send a Miami amateur operator a Leap Year marriage proposal from the wife who divorced him 30 years ago.

It was quite a get-together for 55-year-old Charlie Buckhorn of South Miami and his former wife Edna, who lives in Covington, Ky. "We'll make it for keeps this time," said the radio Romeo.

Buckhorn, whose call letters are W4RBQ, had become friendly with a Covington ham and had mentioned his former wife lived in that area.

Sunday, Buckhorn made contact with his Covington airwaves pal on W4CIM and asked if he had ever met his XWL. In the lingo of hams, XYL means "ex - young lady."

Then W4CIM switched over a telephone hookup to a shortwave radio transmitter and out of the loudspeaker came the voice of Buckhorn's old love.

"I wish you could see me," said Edna. "I'm sitting here in my red pajamas and even though I'm not on my knees, I'm asking you to marry me again."

"By golly, you're simply a good little woman," answered Buckhorn. "We tried it back in 1918 and it didn't work so well, but we'll make it for keeps this time."

Mrs. Smallwood's auto was damaged on the right side, right front wheel and three tires were flat. Police said the driver was uninjured.

$3 Billion Aid Given Ohio By U.S. Treasury

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (AP)—The federal government has spent nearly $3 billion in Ohio since the latter years of the Depression.

The Joint Congressional Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Federal Expenditures disclosed this in a report on federal grants-in-aid to the states from mid-1933 to the end of the 1951 fiscal year last June 30.

The committee said the government paid $2,702,040,819 into Ohio during those 18 years. Some payments went directly to the states; others to individual Ohioans under various programs.

More than $1 out of every $3 went either for unemployment relief under WPA or for World War II veterans readjustment aid. During that same period, total government spending on such grants-in-aid programs throughout the country came to more than $58 billion.

All told, there have been nearly 150 of these programs in that time. Roughly half the Ohio total was provided in the Depression and pre-war period from fiscal 1934 through fiscal 1941.

The biggest single year was fiscal 1939, when the total reached $281,232,303.

Anthrax Said Under Control In Clinton

WILMINGTON, March 3 — (AP)—The outbreak of anthrax among swine seems to be pretty well under control in Clinton County.

Health Commissioner Edward B. Headley said no human has caught the disease. He added that he does not think any one will get it now.

Within the next few days, the health commissioner continued, the cause of last week's outbreak probably will be known.

Latest reports were that 35 farms have been quarantined in Clinton County and that 29 swine have died.

Anthrax was found on 10 of the farms. The others quarantined are adjacent to those where the disease was discovered.

Several Fayette County farms also have been quarantined "on suspicion."

$5,216 Netted To Date In Red Cross Campaign

Pickaway County's 1952 Red Cross drive had netted a total of $5,216 Monday with a dozen collecting points still outstanding.

The 1952 drive ended last Friday night, with more than 200 solicitors joining in the campaign to realize a goal of $10,855.

Officials pointed out Monday that the prospects for meeting this year's goal are good if each of the 12 areas still out has managed to meet its individual quota.

A full report of this year's fund campaign is expected late this week.

Vernie seemed puzzled. "Why me?" he asked. "I can walk!"

To Curb Reds: 'Starve' Them

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (AP)—The U. S. Chamber of Commerce says the best way to kill the Communist Party in this country is to "starve" it to death financially and cut off its sources of power.

This could be done by refusing Communists jobs in virtually all branches of industry, and choking off prestige, power and high salaries by freezing them out of the entertainment, newspaper, radio and similar fields.

Lack Of Cash Stalls Cleanup Of Pollutions

COLUMBUS, March 3 — (AP)—Most Ohio communities which are dumping untreated sewage into rivers would do something about it if they had the money.

Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill told a Columbus Town Meeting radio-television audience Sunday that all 31 communities ordered to adopt anti-pollution programs last June have said they would cooperate.

He said the main problem is obtaining funds to build sewage treatment plants.

The attorney general said all 78 industries cited by the state for stream pollution have agreed to "clean up" too.

Kenneth M. Lloyd, secretary of the Mahoning Valley Industrial Council in Youngstown, said industry is willing to pay sewage fees and to try to curb pollution, but that "we do not have to turn streams into a fishing haven." Lloyd cautioned the state to "go slow" in its anti-pollution drive.

His statement came as Dr. R. E. Eschmeyer, vice president of the Sports Fishing Institute, said pollution is hurting fishing. He claimed cities and industries that say they can't stop pollution are merely stalling "because they don't want to."

God Is A Myth, Communists Say

ROME, March 3 — (AP)—God is a myth, according to the "Great Soviet Encyclopedia for 1950-51," now being translated by the Polish State Publishing House of Warsaw.

Veritas, bulletin of news from behind the Iron Curtain published here by the Christian Academy of Czechoslovakia, gave two excerpts from the Soviet work.

Its definition for God: "A mythically-invented personality. Progressive materialistic and scientific opinion cannot be reconciled with faith in God. One of the highest duties of Soviet man's progressive education is the destruction of all survivals of religion and faith in God."

Of the Old and New Testaments: "In reality, both Moses and Jesus were only mythical persons. The Old and New Testaments are full of contradictions and nonsense."

Easier To Fool Adults Than Kids

LOS ANGELES, March 3 — (AP)—Here's an authority who says it's easier to fool adults than it is children and dogs.

"Child is extremely perceptive of one's attitude toward him," said Dr. Milo B. Brooks, professor of pediatrics here. "Most anyone can fool adults. But no one can fool a child or a dog. They have a sense of perception far beyond ours—which we have lost through lack of use. Some women retain this sense of perception to a great degree. We call it intuition."

Pinay To Try To Form New French Panel

PARIS, March 3 — (AP)—Antoine Pinay, 60-year-old conservative, said Monday he would see if he could form a new cabinet to get France out of its political and financial jam.

Pinay announced his decision to newsmen after a half-hour's talk with President Vincent Auriol.

"My first impulse was to refuse," he said, "but when the president insisted I consent to consult my friends and make an effort."

He added that when he had done that, he would give Auriol a definite reply.

France is groping for a solution to her deepening political crisis following failure of Paul Reynaud to patch together a national union coalition cabinet.

Efforts to form a new government to succeed Edgar Faure's administration had appeared stalemated after another former premier, Rene Pleven, refused even to try to cope with the manifold divisions within the French national assembly at this time.

France's financial and ministerial crisis has stalled development of Western European defense and may mean that much of the West's defense planning will have to be reshaped.

Lausche Had Backing For Presidency

150 Votes Offered By Democrats, But Spurned By Ohioan

COLUMBUS, March 3.—Does Georgia's Sen. Richard B. Russell stand today in the role spurned by Ohio's Gov. Frank J. Lausche?

Russell announced last Thursday for the Democratic nomination for President at the request of a southern group.

Lausche may have turned down such a plea weeks earlier.

The mystery over Lausche's complete refusal to become a national political figure—this year—deepens with new information.

The latest word is that Ohio's governor had at least 150 Democratic convention votes for the presidential nomination offered him to run.

"You'd be surprised if you knew," Lausche told newsmen. "Some day I'll tell you the story, but not now."

The request apparently came from another governor, but Lausche declined to name the source.

That information added weight to reports last January that southern governors, opposed to renomination of President Truman, sought Lausche for their candidate.

Those reports came from a source as authoritative as Lausche himself, but on condition the informant would remain unidentified.

THEY APPARENTLY were circulated to smoke out Lausche who barely two weeks earlier announced for renomination to an unprecedented fourth term as governor.

Lausche reacted promptly. Told of the reports, he issued a statement that he said later applied only to the present.

"I have no ambition for national office," he said. "I have no mental reservations when I make that statement," he added.

That closed the door. But it didn't guarantee that the national spotlight won't play upon him again.

Lausche said that at the 1951 National Governors' Conference he brushed off individual requests by northern and southern executives to run for President. He said he received no bloc request to run.

A look at the voting strength of southern states in the convention makes it easy to figure that an estimate of 150 Lausche votes might be conservative. Anti-Truman sentiment in Dixie this year appears stronger than in 1948.

But 616 votes will be needed for the Democratic convention nomination in Chicago next July, more than four times the total offered Lausche at the start.

Whether Ohio's 54 votes figured in the total wasn't clear. Lausche turned down an offer to become Ohio's "favorite son" candidate at the convention. He isn't even a delegate.

THE STATE Democratic organization turned to former Sen. Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland for a "favorite son." He looks to many like a stand-in for Truman until the President declares himself.

Lausche said after a White House visit last August that he told Mr. Truman he should be a candidate for President in 1952. He said the President smiled and thanked him.

That started speculation boiling over Lausche's national ambitions until he removed himself from the picture in January. During that period he was touted for the vice presidency, U. S. senator, a cabinet post, a federal judgeship and other roles.

Lausche said he couldn't understand it. He pointed out that on various occasions he had expressed a lack of interest in national office.

Earlier he had removed himself from consideration for baseball commissioner. And at times he has spoken almost wistfully of quitting public life.

But for the present Lausche wants to be governor again. His close friends say they have no idea of his future plans. Some of them express doubt that Lausche has anything definite in mind. They say he plays politics mostly by ear and that they, too, are curious about future tunes.

Gardeners Told Not To Worry About Shoots

Flower gardeners were advised today not to worry about early Spring flowering bulbs which have started to grow.

Larry Best, extension agent for Pickaway County, said such flowerers have been worrying gardeners just about as long as people have been around to worry. This year is no exception.

Extension personnel has been receiving questions from people who have found flowers poking tender-looking shoots through cold, wet ground. "There's no need for overcoats and mufflers," Best said.

"Flowers have been doing the same things for thousands of years. Unless there are heavy freezes after buds appear, damage is not likely."

Daffodils have been out when weather was so cold that frozen flower stems were in danger of breaking in the wind—and that was about the only danger. They survived it.

Later in the season, new growth on some lilies or magnolia flowers might be damaged by late frosts.

Lausche Had Backing For Presidency

150 Votes Offered By Democrats, But Spurned By Ohioan

COLUMBUS, March 3 — (P)—Does Georgia's Sen. Richard B. Russell stand today in the role spurned by Ohio's Gov. Frank J. Lausche?

Russell announced last Thursday for the Democratic nomination for President at the request of a southern group.

Lausche may have turned down such a plea weeks earlier.

The mystery over Lausche's complete refusal to become a national political figure—this year—deepens with new information.

The latest word is that Ohio's governor had at least 150 Democratic convention votes for the presidential nomination offered him to run.

"You'd be surprised if you knew," Lausche told newsmen. "Some day I'll tell you the story, but not now."

The request apparently came from another governor, but Lausche declined to name the source.

That information added weight to reports last January that southern governors, opposed to renomination of President Truman, sought Lausche for their candidate.

Those reports came from a source as authoritative as Lausche himself, but on condition the informant would remain unidentified.

THEY APPARENTLY were circulated to smoke out Lausche who barely two weeks earlier announced for renomination to an unprecedented fourth term as governor.

Lausche reacted promptly. Told of the reports, he issued a statement that he said later applied only to the present.

"I have no ambition for national office," he said. "I have no mental reservations when I make that statement," he added.

That closed the door. But it didn't guarantee that the national spotlight won't play upon him again.

Lausche said that at the 1951 National Governors' Conference he brushed off individual requests by northern and southern executives to run for President. He said he received no bloc request to run.

A look at the voting strength of southern states in the convention makes it easy to figure that an estimate of 150 Lausche votes might be conservative. Anti-Truman sentiment in Dixie this year appears stronger than in 1948.

But 616 votes will be needed for the Democratic convention nomination in Chicago next July, more than four times the total offered Lausche at the start.

Whether Ohio's 54 votes figured in the total wasn't clear. Lausche turned down an offer to become Ohio's "favorite son" candidate at the convention. He isn't even a delegate.

THE STATE Democratic organization turned to former Sen. Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland for a "favorite son." He looks to many like a stand-in for Truman until the President declares himself.

Lausche said after a White House visit last August that he told Mr. Truman he should be a candidate for President in 1952. He said the President smiled and thanked him.

That started speculation boiling over Lausche's national ambitions until he removed himself from the picture in January. During that period he was touted for the vice presidency, U. S. senator, a cabinet post, a federal judgeship and other roles.

Lausche said he couldn't understand it. He pointed out that on various occasions he had expressed a lack of interest in national office.

Earlier he had removed himself from consideration for baseball commissioner. And at times he has spoken almost wistfully of quitting public life.

But for the present Lausche wants to be governor again. His close friends say they have no idea of his future plans. Some of them express doubt that Lausche has anything definite in mind. They say he plays politics mostly by ear and that they, too, are as curious about future tunes.

Teen Tips

Three bright high school girls breezed into the office recently with books in their arms and something on their minds. Guess what they wanted to chat about? Boys!

"We have dates and plenty of fun," they explained. "Usually we go places and do things in a group, yet the crowd is always a little different, so we get to know new boys and girls. We're not complaining, but we think you ought to write something for boys. They need it more than girls do!"

"I wish boys wouldn't think you're madly in love with them if you just speak to them," continued one. "When I say 'Hello!', it's just to be friendly, but some boys act as if they thought you were in love with them."

"What I wish is that boys would help with the conversation during dates," chimed in another. "A girl has to ask a lot of questions to keep up a conversation with some boys, then if the boy answers only 'no' or 'Umm,' she's licked. You just can't talk with a boy like that and it's embarrassing."

"I like to date boys who don't expect you to kiss them the first time you go out with them," declared the third. "Another thing, a girl likes a boy to say what his plans are when he makes a date, so she knows what to wear and prepare for. Tell the boys, will you?"

Liquor Agents Report On Raids

CLEVELAND, March 3 — (P)—State agents raided the East Side Social Club in Toledo over the weekend and caught bartenders serving 75-cent "set-ups" for mixed drinks to 200 customers, Liquor Enforcement Chief Anthony A. Rutkowski reports.

Throughout the state, Rutkowski said, there were 21 arrests. In Portsmouth, Leona Hutton, a waitress in a night club, was charged with selling liquor to minors.

Agents arrested four in Hillsboro, two for possessing untaxed moonshine whisky. In Dayton, four were arrested for bootlegging. A crowd of 25 enjoying a whisky and gin party was dispersed in another Dayton spot.

Gardeners Told Not To Worry About Shoots

Flower gardeners were advised today not to worry about early Spring flowering bulbs which have started to grow.

Larry Best, extension agent for Pickaway County, said such flowerers have been worrying gardeners just about as long as people have been around to worry. This year is no exception.

Extension personnel has been receiving questions from people who have found flowers poking tender-looking shoots through cold, wet ground. "There's no need for overcoats and mufflers," Best said.

"Flowers have been doing the same things for thousands of years. Unless there are heavy freezes after buds appear, damage is not likely."

Daffodils have been out when weather was so cold that frozen flower stems were in danger of breaking in the wind—and that was about the only danger. They survived it.

Later in the season, new growth on some lilies or magnolia flowers might be damaged by late frosts.

THE EARTH

MAN HAS DELVED in the earth for food, water, building materials, fuel and facts. Some of the facts concerned earlier, buried civilizations, some concerned the structure of the earth itself.

As a general rule, facts about the earth have appealed less to the imagination than facts, or theories, about the skies.

The astrologer, with his false pretensions, pretended to scan the heavens for man's fate, whereas, as concerns the earth, magic seldom flourished. There is, of course, the dowser with his divining-rod supposed to bend when subsurface water is present.

Another and more reputable kind of dowsing has been done under the auspices of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of the Carnegie Institution of Washington in cooperation with the Office of Naval Research. These two groups have been sounding the earth's crust.

Sounding is not an inappropriate description, for the work involves extensive tests of the speed of shock waves at various terrestrial depths. From tests thus far made, the tentative conclusion is reached that the earth's light outer crust is about 25 miles thick.

Underneath that crust lies the earth's basic outer surface, known as the mantle. Thus the outer surface floats upon an inner core, into which the enormous weight of mountains pushed down, as icebergs push into water.

Science predicts that when the sun, which is finite, dies, the earth will die, too. Thereafter the earth will roll through space, dark and dead, all of man's miseries and glories unnoted, forever forgotten. That, however, will be several billion years from now. Meanwhile, the earth is a going concern, at least as a planet revolving around a star among the galaxies.

As long as man endures, he cannot cease to be curious about the earth and the skies. Geologic research is less dramatic than astronomical, but the earth still has a multitude of secrets to unfold. Perhaps current research, if it accomplishes nothing else that is spectacular, will reveal whether it is possible for an explosion of nuclear fission to blow up the earth.

When Russia's propaganda machine converts to TV, will it be still more evident that the reds are bare-faced liars?

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

In 1928, the presidential campaign reached a shameful low in the smearing of Al Smith because of his adherence to the faith of his ancestors. No one will today question the fine qualities of Al Smith, his rigid Americanism, and his undeniable services to his country.

Herbert Hoover and Al Smith became fast friends in the late years of Al's life. I have heard from both about the 1928 campaign, which I did not witness because I was not in this country then. Herbert Hoover resented the injection of the religious issue into that campaign and Al Smith confirmed to me that he never believed for a moment that Hoover countenanced the misery of the assumption that a man is unfit to be President because of his religious affiliations.

In connection with General Eisenhower, two contradictory and unfair reports are making the rounds, neither of which has any basis in truth and neither of which a man of General Eisenhower's position would deny publicly, because the denial itself would give some countenance to the designs of those who would inject a sectarian factor into the campaign.

Perhaps I am more fitted to discuss this than an Eisenhower adherent, because I have chosen, as a citizen, to express support for an old friend, Senator Taft. It is from the standpoint of this overt partisanship that I call attention to and protest against the attempt of small minds to smear a soldier and a leading citizen by clothing him with affiliations which are not his and to use this purported adherence to damage him.

The first report comes from a widely circulated photograph of a page in the 1915 "Howitzer," the year-book of West Point, in which Ike Eisenhower is called a Swedish Jew. Eisenhower happens to be neither a Swede nor a Jew. Were he such, he would undoubtedly be proud of his ancestry, as all decent men are.

I have thoroughly investigated the story. Eisenhower's family is Pennsylvania Dutch on his father's side and Lutheran on his mother's side. The page in the 1915 "Howitzer" was written by his roommate and is, like all references in year-books, supposed to be humorous. That kind of humor should not be used in a political campaign in the year 1952.

The second rumor has to do with an assertion in some book that Ike is a secret Roman Catholic, having once been a coach in a Roman Catholic college, etc.

Although it is not possible for a man to be a Jew, a Roman Catholic and a Protestant all at the same time, I am sure that these reports are being circulated by the same people, bigots who hate Jews and Roman Catholics.

My investigations are fairly complete and I can state that no Republican candidate is involved in this scandalous circulation of falsehood. It comes from well-known bigots. Actually, one of the circulars bears a price tag.

Those who favor or oppose Eisenhower, Taft, Stassen, Warren and MacArthur do so because, in the great traditions of our

DIET AND HEALTH

Effects Of Lack Of Potassium

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ONE of the important minerals necessary for good health is potassium. We can now detect losses of potassium from the body and replace this vital mineral in time to prevent serious or fatal results. Potassium loss is a danger in diarrhea, continued vomiting and in certain surgical operations and disorders.

Many times the potassium in the body takes a serious drop after difficult and prolonged operations on the intestines or stomach. This drop is also seen after large amounts of fluid have been removed from the stomach through a stomach tube.

Marked Distress

A lack of potassium in the blood and tissues may bring on a severe deficiency, with marked distress symptoms. The patient may show great weakness of the body in general, a loss of voice, or severe weakness of the vocal cords, and a swollen and distended abdomen. He may also become much more irritable.

These and other symptoms, which are typical of a potassium shortage in the body, can make all the difference between a surgical patient who recovers and one who does not.

The doctor can now make sure of such a mineral shortage by testing the patient's heart action with the electrocardiograph. The tracings made by this machine show definite heart changes which are known to come from a lack of potassium.

Saves Many Patients

This method of detection, together with the proper replacement of potassium, is now saving many patients who would formerly have died following surgery. Potassium is also being given before and after surgery when a patient is having an operation on a large portion of the intestine.

The same sort of potassium deficiency is seen in cases of severe diarrhea and vomiting. Extra supplies of the mineral have been given in such cases, and have done much to reduce the danger of complications which can follow these disorders.

Answer: Hard water may not cause kidney stones directly. However, if a person has a tendency to form them, the high calcium content of hard water may be instrumental in producing them.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE
NANCY RYAN'S voice, when she started to sing, was low, throaty. The lyrics, her song were blue and vulgar, but her face maintained an expression of untroubled innocence. At the end of her number, she bowed to the burst of applause, paid no noticeable attention to the wolf calls and whistles, permitted herself to be coaxed into another, bluer number. This time she refused to give an encore, undulated back toward the dressing room door.

Liddell turned back, grinned at the bartender's questioning stare. "How about it? Do I get the knockdown?"

The man behind the stick shrugged. "It's your funeral, mister." He shuffled up to the service end of the bar where a waiter was unloading a tray of empty glasses, whispered to him. The waiter looked down to where Liddell was standing, shook his head. The bartender fished in his watch pocket, brought out the folded bill, let the waiter look at it. The waiter nodded, abandoned his tray of empties, walked down to where Liddell stood.

"Harry says you want I should deliver a message backstage," he snuffed. "I don't know, Kennedy don't like that kind of stuff."

Liddell nodded, found a folded five in his palm, stared at it significantly. "That's too bad. But I guess a rule's a rule, eh?"

The waiter reached out, snatched the folded bill, smoothed it out lovingly, transferred it to his vest pocket. A smile disarranged his battered features. "Sure, but it's like they say. A customer's got some rights. Who'll I say wants to see her?"

Liddell winked. "Just tell her it's a lonesome out-of-towner."

"Check." The waiter squinted into the smoke, located an empty table. "See the table near the post? You sit there, I'll bring her out."

Liddell picked his way through the crowded tables to the empty one the waiter had indicated. After a few minutes the waiter was back. "She'll be right with you, mister."

Liddell saw the tall brunette come out of the backstage door. She had changed the red evening gown for a low cut black dress. She stood at the bandstand, staring around with a frown until the waiter with the battered face caught her eye. He signaled her over, indicated Liddell. The frown faded from her face and she started toward him, picking her way between the tables.

Liddell stood up as she reached his table. "Thanks for coming out."

The brunette pursed thick, soft looking lips, looked with approval at the broad shoulders, the thick shock of dark hair she wore with gray. "I didn't know there were any out-of-towners looked like you," she said huskily. "They're usually fat, old, and drooling." She was older than she had looked on the floor. A faint network of wrinkles under her eyes was waging a losing battle with her make-up. There was a tired droop at the corners of the full lips.

"I'm not very old or fat," Liddell grinned.

The brunette's answering grin was quick, erased years from her face. She dropped into her chair, watched Liddell from under beaded eyelashes. "What made you ask me to come out?"

Liddell signaled for two drinks. "You kidding?"

The brunette pursed her lips, purred. "There are other pretty girls in the show. Why me? Why not one of them?"

"Maybe you're my type," Liddell held out a pack of cigarettes, waited until she had selected one, then took one himself, hung it from the corner of his mouth. "I hope you didn't mind my asking you to come out?"

Nancy leaned over, accepted a light, blew a stream of smoke up into his face. "I'm glad you did." She leaned back in her chair, studied him through dreamy, half closed eyes. "Going to be around long?"

"If you want me to be."

"What's really on your mind?" "I don't follow."

"You're no out-of-towner. You've got the Big Town stamped all over you. And you're no sucker. You're not sitting here in this clip joint buying me cold tea at a buck and a half a throw just for excitement." She shrugged. "Not that I care, but why?"

Liddell twirled his butt between thumb and forefinger, stared at it. He decided to play it straight. "Maybe I wanted to meet you because I thought you and I could do some business together."

The brunette's eyes moved languidly from Liddell to the bar in the outer room, then from table to table. "What kind of business?"

"I'm in the market for information. I'm willing to pay for it."

"What makes you think I have the information you want?"

Liddell picked up his glass. "I know you have." He studied her. "What do you say?"

Liddell slid his .45 from its holster, reached for the light switch. Two table lamps bathed the room with a subdued light. There was nobody in the room. Liddell investigated the other two rooms, found them empty. He returned the .45 to its hammock, dropped into an easy chair to wait. His watch said 4:20.

THE EARTH

MAN HAS DELVED in the earth for food, water, building materials, fuel and facts. Some of the facts concerned earlier, buried civilizations, some concerned the structure of the earth itself.

As a general rule, facts about the earth have appealed less to the imagination than facts, or theories, about the skies.

The astrologer, with his false pretensions, pretended to scan the heavens for man's fate, whereas, as concerns the earth, magic seldom flourished. There is, of course, the dowser with his divining-rod supposed to bend when subsurface water is present.

Another and more reputable kind of dowsing has been done under the auspices of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of the Carnegie Institution of Washington in cooperation with the Office of Naval Research. These two groups have been sounding the earth's crust.

Sounding is not an inappropriate description, for the work involves extensive tests of the speed of shock waves at various terrestrial depths. From tests thus far made, the tentative conclusion is reached that the earth's light outer crust is about 25 miles thick.

Underneath that crust lies the earth's basic outer surface, known as the mantle. Thus the outer surface floats upon an inner core, into which the enormous weight of mountains pushed down, as icebergs push into water.

Science predicts that when the sun, which is finite, dies, the earth will die, too. Thereafter the earth will roll through space, dark and dead, all of man's miseries and glories unnoted, forever forgotten. That, however, will be several billion years from now. Meanwhile, the earth is a going concern, at least as a planet revolving around a star among the galaxies.

As long as man endures, he cannot cease to be curious about the earth and the skies. Geologic research is less dramatic than astronomical, but the earth still has a multitude of secrets to unfold. Perhaps current research, if it accomplishes nothing else that is spectacular, will reveal whether it is possible for an explosion of nuclear fission to blow up the earth.

When Russia's propaganda machine converts to TV, will it be still more evident that the reds are bare-faced liars?

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Congressional circles have become increasingly restless and suspicious over the executive secrecy surrounding several international deals that will call for large but unauthorized expenditure of United States funds. All have been negotiated behind the "iron curtain" which separates the White House from Capitol Hill.

This concern exists first because of the money outlay in a re-election year, with unprecedented taxes and budgets for peace time. As March 15 approaches, the voters are howling for economy in crescendo tones and in voluminous mail.

But a secondary and more basic worry is the fact that the White House and State Department have negotiated these transactions in such a complex, indirect and roundabout way that Congress cannot learn the details of all the agreements, or estimate the sums of money that have been committed.

In some instances, it cannot even ascertain the amounts or terms or implications of the contracts.

CONTRIBUTIONS — Not all of these financial transactions have to do with military aid, although these funds will have to be increased vastly under the Lisbon "blueprint" for a European Defense Community.

It has not been revealed officially, but our allies expect the United States to finance most of the 3-year, $300 billion program for their protection against Russia.

In addition, the Administration has agreed to sell, swap, give and provide arms, raw materials and finished articles of manufacture to participating nations in NATO and Eisenhower's force.

They, in turn, are supposed to make what are known as "equivalent" contributions of men, labor, land, materials, military supplies. It is a vast industrial and business undertaking, not merely a pooling of armies and weapons.

CONTROL — Now, the making and the implementation of these economic and military deals will be in the exclusive control of the executive agencies. It will be the heads of State, Defense, Commerce and the Mutual Security Administration who will interpret the complex terms of the agreements.

It will be they who will fix the dollar value of American contributions, as well as the counterbalancing and offsetting cost of other nations' so-called "equivalents."

It will be officials beholden to the White House who will figure out such complicated but controlling problems as the rates of exchange. In short, they will have final voice on insuring that the United States gets a full dollar of goods and services for each dollar paid out.

DISSATISFACTION — Obviously, Congress cannot set up an accounting force to check on all these major and minute transactions. It has neither the money nor the personnel. It is questionable whether it has the authority, in view of the many blanket grants of power to the White House.

Yet it is here where Uncle Sam can be short-changed by authorities who have already demonstrated to the dissatisfaction of Capitol Hill their eagerness to bypass the legislative branch in expending American men and treasure overseas.

DEAL — Congressional concern over possible book-keeping tricks and loopholes has been sharpened by a confidential report on the "tin deal" negotiated during the recent Truman-Churchill conversations. Represented at first as a fine bargain for the United States, it now appears to have been a definite British triumph. It is regarded as symptomatic of recent undisclosed bargaining.

When Congressional committees found that the British and Dutch had hiked the pre-Korean price of tin from seventy-five cents to $1.88, Stuart Symington, then R.F.C. Administrator, exploded.

He fixed $1 as a decent price for the British-Dutch imports and

These Days

In 1928, the presidential campaign reached a shameful low in the smearing of Al Smith because of his adherence to the faith of his ancestors. No one will today question the fine qualities of Al Smith, his rigid Americanism, and his undeniable services to his country.

Herbert Hoover and Al Smith became fast friends in the late years of Al's life. I have heard from both about the 1928 campaign, which I did not witness because I was not in this country then. Herbert Hoover resented the injection of the religious issue into that campaign and Al Smith confirmed to me that he never believed for a moment that Hoover countenanced the misery of the assumption that a man is unfit to be President because of his religious affiliations.

In connection with General Eisenhower, two contradictory and unfair reports are making the rounds, neither of which has any basis in truth and neither of which a man of General Eisenhower's position would deny publicly, because the denial itself would give some countenance to the designs of those who would inject a sectarian factor into the campaign.

Perhaps I am more fitted to discuss this than an Eisenhower adherent, because I have chosen, as a citizen, to express support for an old friend, Senator Taft. It is from the standpoint of this overt partisanship that I call attention to and protest against the attempt of small minds to damage him.

The first report comes from a widely circulated photograph of a page in the 1915 "Howitzer," the year-book of West Point, in which Ike Eisenhower is called a Swedish Jew. Eisenhower happens to be neither a Swede nor a Jew. Were he such, he would undoubtedly be proud of his ancestry, as all decent men are.

I have thoroughly investigated the story. Eisenhower's family is Pennsylvania Dutch on his father's side and Lutheran on his mother's side. The page in the 1915 "Howitzer" was written by his roommate and is, like all references in year-books, supposed to be humorous. That kind of humor should not be used in a political campaign in the year 1952.

The second rumor has to do with an assertion in some book that Ike is a secret Roman Catholic, having once been a coach in a Roman Catholic college, etc.

Although it is not possible for a man to be a Jew, a Roman Catholic and a Protestant all at the same time, I am sure that these reports are being circulated by the same people, bigots who hate Jews and Roman Catholics.

My investigations are fairly complete and I can state that no Republican candidate is involved in this scandalous circulation of falsehood. It comes from well-known bigots. Actually, one of the circulars bears a price tag.

Those who favor or oppose Eisenhower, Taft, Stassen, Warren and MacArthur do so because, in the great traditions of our

Effects Of Lack Of Potassium

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ONE of the important minerals necessary for good health is potassium. We can now detect losses of potassium from the body and replace this vital mineral in time to prevent serious or fatal results. Potassium loss is a danger in diarrhea, continued vomiting and in certain surgical operations and disorders.

Many times the potassium in the body takes a serious drop after difficult and prolonged operations on the intestines or stomach. This drop is also seen after large amounts of fluid have been removed from the stomach through a stomach tube.

Marked Distress

A lack of potassium in the blood and tissues may bring on a severe deficiency, with marked distress symptoms. The patient may show great weakness of the body in general, a loss of voice, or severe weakness of the vocal cords, and a swollen and distended abdomen. He may also become much more irritable.

These and other symptoms, which are typical of a potassium shortage in the body, can make all the difference between a surgical patient who recovers and one who does not.

The doctor can now make sure of such a mineral shortage by testing the patient's heart action with the electrocardiograph. The tracings made by this machine show definite heart changes which are known to come from a lack of potassium.

Saves Many Patients

This method of detection, together with the proper replacement of potassium, is now saving many patients who would formerly have died following surgery. Potassium is also being given before and after surgery when a patient is having an operation on a large portion of the intestine.

The same sort of potassium deficiency is seen in cases of severe diarrhea and vomiting. Extra supplies of the mineral have been given in such cases, and have done much to reduce the danger of complications which can follow these disorders.

ANSWER: Hard water may not cause kidney stones directly. However, if a person has a tendency to form them, the high calcium content of hard water may be instrumental in producing them.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

NANCY RYAN'S voice, when she started to sing, was low, throaty. The lyrics of her song were blue and vulgar, but her face maintained an expression of untroubled innocence. At the end of her number, she bowed to the burst of applause, paid no noticeable attention to the wolf calls and whistles, permitted herself to be coaxed into another, bluer number. This time she refused to give an encore, undulated back toward the dressing room door.

Liddell turned back, grinned at the bartender's questioning stare. "How about it? Do I get the knockdown?"

The man behind the stick shrugged. "It's your funeral, mister." He shuffled up to the service end of the bar where a waiter was unloading a tray of empty glasses, whispered to him. The waiter looked down to where Liddell was standing, shook his head. The bartender fished in his watch pocket, brought out the folded bill, let the waiter look at it. The waiter nodded, abandoned his tray of empties, walked down to where Liddell stood.

"Harry says you want I should deliver a message backstage," he snuffed. "I don't know. Kennedy don't like that kind of stuff."

Liddell nodded, found a folded five in his palm, stared at it significantly. "That's too bad. But I guess a rule's a rule, eh?"

The waiter reached out, snagged the folded bill, smoothed it out lovingly, transferred it to his vest pocket. A smile disengaged his battered features. "Sure, but it's like they say. A customer's got some rights. Who'll I say wants to see her?"

Liddell winked. "Just tell her it's a lonesome out-of-towner."

"Check." The waiter squinted into the smoke, located an empty table. "See the table near the post? You sit there, I'll bring her out."

Liddell picked his way through the crowded tables to the empty one the waiter had indicated. After a few minutes the waiter was back. "She'll be right with you, mister."

Liddell saw the tall brunette come out of the backstage door. She had changed the red evening gown for a low cut black dress. She stood at the bandstand, staring around with a frown until the waiter with the battered face caught her eye. He signaled her over, indicated Liddell. The frown faded from her face and she started toward him, picking her way between the tables.

Women Are Asked To Take Part In Conservation

Miss Ethel Larsen, who has gone up and down the land preaching conservation of our natural resources, inherited her pioneering spirit from her grandparents, who came to America from Denmark in 1861. Miss Larsen who lives in Manistee, Mich., is now consultant to the Conservation of Natural Resources Committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

As chairman of the committee from 1947 to 1950, it was her job to try to get women the nation over to look beyond their own garden patches to conservation in terms of the soil, water, the forests and wildlife.

"I had to know more about the 48 states when I took the job," she said on a recent visit to Washington. "In three years I traveled by motor more than 150,000 miles on a 'show-me' tour of every state and Alaska, as far as Skagway."

The trip, she says, was for two purposes—to educate herself and to educate other women to "look at the landscape with conservation eyes."

"Education is still the greatest need," she said. "Women are still saying 'why should I know about selected cutting in forests, contour plowing or rotation of crops when I live in the city?' Only 20 per cent of the U.S. population raises its own food. Eighty per cent are dependent upon the 20 per cent and we should know whether the 20 per cent are keeping the land in a good healthy condition. And how many women know when they turn on the faucet in their kitchen from where comes that water, how long will it take water come out of that faucet and is that water pure enough for her family to drink?"

Miss Larsen and her sister for some years owned and operated a specialty shop which grew to be acclaimed as the "Little Marshall Field's of Michigan." In their modern-style home, built from bricks from a Milwaukee courthouse which dated from 1870, they look out over vast, carefully landscaped gardens and Lake Michigan.

"The gardens are opened to every group that meets in Manistee," Miss Larsen said. "We love to entertain. Every year we serve coffee to more than 2,000 people and I take them through the garden to see why I did what I did."

County Farmers Receive Tips On Stock Raising

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the final in a series of articles prepared for The Circleville Herald by Pickaway County PMA, SCS and Extension Service with facts and recommendations for local farm folks, so that more food may be produced with greater efficiency in 1952.)

Dairy Cattle

Pickaway County has about 8,700 dairy cows. Current milk production rates are about 5,550 pounds per cow. These cows paid their owners about 25 cents per hour for labor in 1951.

More and better roughages and pasture should increase total dairy cow feed intake and stimulate production.

Use grassland crops more efficiently by: ensiling a larger portion of hay crops; mow-drying hay crops where economically feasible; pasturing more intensively with more frequent rotation of cattle from field to field. Use electric fence; and earlier cutting of hay crops.

Use grain crops more efficiently by feeding a larger proportion of roughage crops with grain; balancing grain rations; and feeding animals according to productive ability.

ELIMINATE LOW producers and feed better cows more liberally. Improve herds by artificial breeding and production testing. Eliminate or cure diseased animals, practice rigid sanitation and good management to prevent disease.

Market a high quality product.

Beef Cattle
One of the great wastes in Pickaway County agriculture is the loss of beef that might be profitably gained by improving harvesting and storing methods that include consideration of the value of roughage as well as grain.

There are tons of roughages containing large quantities of expensive produced feed nutrients suitable for cattle feed now wasted or lost so far as the human food supply is concerned. This represents lost income to farm operators because such roughages are not used.

Select feeders according to kind of feed, feeding plan to be followed and season of marketing.

Select breeding cattle with good, beefy conformation and sound skeletal structure, with known ability to gain rapidly on roughage.

Breed nothing less than choice cattle. Plan for spring calves to make maximum use of pasture by both cows and calves. Feed silage for greatest beef efficiency.

Keep productive cow herds on pasture, hay, stover and cereal straws. No grain or supplements are necessary. Reduce labor load by using automatic and self-feeding equipment.

BUY PASTURE cattle in Fall. Winter on roughage. Provide inexpensive, minimum amount of shelter. Finish cattle according to market grade. Observe seasonal and market demands for grade, quality and finish.

Consider raising your own feeders. This plan is best suited to conservation farming and has fewer risks for young farmers, small feeders and those less experienced.

Sheep
Maintain only healthy breeding ewes. Cull breeding flock for uniformity. Keep production records.

Breed ewes to purebred rams with known lamb and wool production. Grow and feed breeding ewes legume hay for basis winter ration.

Feed grain before lambing and during nursing period. Fit sheep program to crop rotation; provide supplementary pasture.

Keep flock healthy by: drenching at least three times per year with phenothiazine-lead arsenate drench; feeding phenothiazine-salt mixture (one to nine) during grazing season; dipping or spraying your sheep flock for ticks, lice and scab; and rotating sheep on pasture monthly to obtain fewer parasites and more feed.

Provide adequate shelter, grain troughs and hay racks. Protect lambs from chilling.

KEEP SHEEP dry before shearing. Shear on clean floor. Tie each fleece with wool twine. Plan lamb and wool production to take advantage of market demands. Market lambs and wool on graded basis.

Swine
Select swine type that performs best in reproductive ability, in feeding and gaining ability, and that satisfies modern market demand in carcass yields.

Use two-litter system — farrow in February, March and in August, September. Pasture swine on legumes.

Supplement rations with protein, vitamins and minerals. Pay strict attention to sanitation. Use latest parasite remedies. Top-out hogs at best market weights — 200-220 pounds. Move hogs carefully to prevent shipping losses.

Poultry
Purchase best available chicks for top egg and poultry meat production. Purchase chicks from hatcheries doing a good job of breeding, selection and pullet control.

Reduce waste of feed. Fill feeders only one-half to two-thirds full to stop billing out. Feed best ration available. Use proper size feeders.

Produce quality eggs. Gather eggs frequently, cool quickly and market twice per week. Market eggs on quality and size basis.

Use legume poultry range, where possible, for pullets, turkeys, roosters and capons for efficient gains. Use labor-saving devices.

BONES OF PEKING MAN VANISH: DID RED CHINESE DEVOUR HIM?

By JERRY KLEIN

Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK—Scientists at the Museum of Natural History fear that the few, priceless bones which are modern man's only legacy from one of his ancestors—Peking Man (Sinanthropus Pekinensis)—have been ground up and sold for medicine. The museum denies Chinese Communist charges that Americans stole the Peking Man's bones and hid them in the United States.

Dr. Harry L. Shapiro, chairman of the museum's anthropology department, says if the bones truly are missing they may well have been pulverized for sale in one of the weird Oriental drug stores which sell such medicines as charred sparrow and powdered fox tongue.

The bones of the 500,000-year-old man were found in a cave about 35 miles from Peking, China. Early in 1941, when Japanese armies advanced toward Peking, the bones were taken to the city's American embassy for safekeeping. Then, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, Peking's marine detachment loaded the bones with other baggage on a train for the China coast.

However, according to the former commander of the Marine unit, Brig. Gen. William Ashurst, Peking Man's bones never left China. The train was seized by the Japanese who apparently "just kept what was useful to them at the time and threw everything else away."

SAYS General Ashurst: "The Peking Man's bones must not have looked like much. Perhaps they found them and just threw them away, like the canned food they dumped off the train."

If General Ashurst and Dr. Shapiro are right, the bones long ago were eaten by some Oriental who thought they'd relieve his high blood pressure. For centuries, people in China and Japan have been taking powdered bone to combat such maladies. Of course, a tablespoonful of Peking Man after every meal would add up to the most expensive prescription in history.

However, Asians take their bone medicine seriously. One shop in Tokyo did no less than $1,000,000 worth of such business last year. Like many other medicine shops in the Orient, it handled an assortment of strange drugs which were popular centuries before the western world ever dreamed of such things as bacteria, vaccines or anti-biotics.

We have our own ideas on how to combat high blood pressure, but some Orientals swear by the tongue of a fox which has been dried and ground into powder. You might reach for the aspirin when you have a headache, but they would reach for some charred earthworms, powdered rhinoceros horn or charred monkey brain.

You may think a dry, clean atmosphere relieves asthma, but they prefer to treat it by eating a mole which has been charred. You can keep your vitamins for curing beriberi—they'll eat powdered locust. They also take charred bat to prevent epilepsy, powdered mantis for kidney trouble or snail for pleurisy, and charred dragonfly to stop whooping cough. They treat female disorders with dried salamander or the blood of snapping turtles.

Other strange medicines in the Orient include charred bats, slugs and silkworms, powdered snakes, newts and leeches.

Some of these weird drug stores employ people who roam the countryside, collecting the insects, birds and animals which will be made into medicines.

The medicines would be better, it is said, if taken in their natural state. However, since one may not relish eating fresh earthworms, all the medicinal creatures are first killed. Then they are baked in hot ovens and ground up.

So perhaps the bones of Peking Man have been taken by some Chinese Communists suffering from high blood pressure. The way the Communists have been stepped in Korea, it's no wonder their blood pressures have shot up.

Office Workers Continue Strike

AKRON, March 3—In spite of urging by union leaders, only about 75 production workers moved back into the strike-closed B. F. Goodrich Co. Monday.

However, pickets stationed by the 4,000 striking office workers declined to permit foremen or supervisors to pass. The company said there could be no production without them, so the 75 went home. Though they have been ordered a return to their jobs, Goodrich's 10,000 production workers each will pay $4 a week to support the office workers strike.

Purchase best available chicks for top egg and poultry meat production. Purchase chicks from hatcheries doing a good job of breeding, selection and pullet control.

Reduce waste of feed. Fill feeders only one-half to two-thirds full to stop billing out. Feed best ration available. Use proper size feeders.

Produce quality eggs. Gather eggs frequently, cool quickly and market twice per week. Market eggs on quality and size basis.

Use legume poultry range, where possible, for pullets, turkeys, roosters and capons for efficient gains. Use labor-saving devices.

Office Workers Continue Strike

AKRON, March 3—In spite of urging by union leaders, only about 75 production workers moved back into the strike-closed B. F. Goodrich Co. Monday.

However, pickets stationed by the 4,000 striking office workers declined to permit foremen or supervisors to pass. The company said there could be no production without them, so the 75 went home. Though they have been ordered a return to their jobs, Goodrich's 10,000 production workers each will pay $4 a week to support the office workers strike.

BONES OF PEKING MAN VANISH: DID RED CHINESE DEVOUR HIM?

By JERRY KLEIN
Central Press Correspondent

NEW YORK—Scientists at the Museum of Natural History fear that the few, priceless bones which are modern man's only legacy from one of his ancestors—Peking Man (Sinanthropus Pekinensis)—have been ground up and sold for medicine. The museum denies Chinese Communist charges that Americans stole the Peking Man's bones and hid them in the United States.

Dr. Harry L. Shapiro, chairman of the museum's anthropology department, says if the bones truly are missing they may well have been pulverized for sale in one of the weird Oriental drug stores which sell such medicines as charred sparrow and powdered fox tongue.

The bones of the 500,000-year-old man were found in a cave about 35 miles from Peking, China. Early in 1941, when Japanese armies advanced toward Peking, the bones were taken to the city's American embassy for safekeeping. Then, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, Peking's marine detachment loaded the bones with other baggage on a train for the China coast.

However, according to the former commander of the Marine unit, Brig. Gen. William Ashurst, Peking Man's bones never left China. The train was seized by the Japanese who apparently "just kept what was useful to them at the time and threw everything else away."

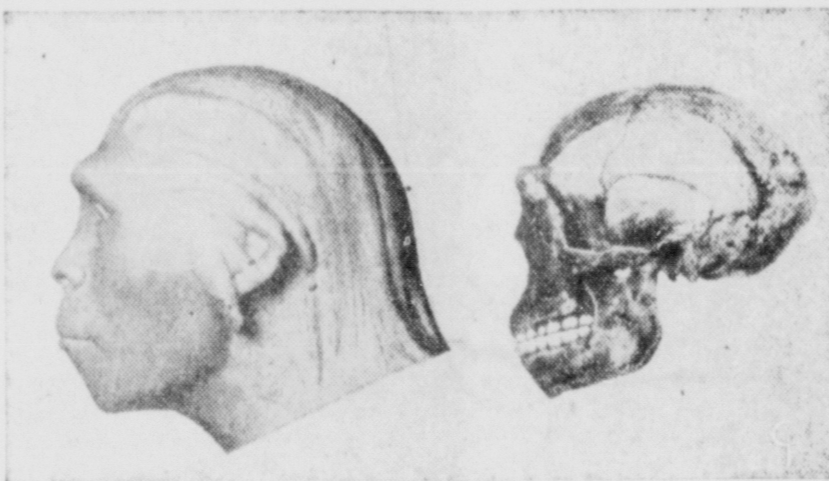

SAYS General Ashurst: "The Peking Man's bones must not have looked like much. Perhaps they found them and just threw them away, like the canned food they dumped off the train."

If General Ashurst and Dr. Shapiro are right, the bones long ago were eaten by some Oriental who thought they'd relieve his high blood pressure. For centuries, people in China and Japan have been taking powdered bone to combat such maladies. Of course, a tablespoonful of Peking Man after every meal would add up to the most expensive prescription in history.

However, Asians take their bone medicine seriously. One shop in Tokyo did no less than $1,000,000 worth of such business last year. Like many other medicine shops in the Orient, it handled an assortment of strange drugs which were popular centuries before the western world ever dreamed of such things as bacteria, vaccines or anti-biotics.

We have our own ideas on how to combat high blood pressure, but some Orientals swear by the tongue of a fox which has been dried and ground into powder. You might reach for the aspirin when you have a headache, but they would reach for some charred earthworms, powdered rhinoceros horn or charred monkey brain.

You may think a dry, clean atmosphere relieves asthma, but they prefer to treat it by eating a mole which has been charred. You can keep your vitamins for curing beriberi—they'll eat powdered locust. They also take charred bat to prevent epilepsy, powdered mantis for kidney trouble or snail for pleurisy, and charred dragonfly to stop whooping cough. They treat female disorders with dried salamander or the blood of snapping turtles.

Other strange medicines in the Orient include charred bats, slugs and silkworms, powdered snakes, newts and leeches.

Some of these weird drug stores employ people who roam the countryside, collecting the insects, birds and animals which will be made into medicines.

The medicines would be better, it is said, if taken in their natural state. However, since one may not relish eating fresh earthworms, all the medicinal creatures are first killed. Then they are baked in hot ovens and ground up.

So perhaps the bones of Peking Man have been taken by some Chinese Communists suffering from high blood pressure. The way the Communists have been stopped in Korea, it's no wonder their blood pressures have shot up.

Methodist Bishop Urges Campaign

COLUMBUS, March 3—Bishop Hazen G. Werner announced Sunday that the Methodist Church is launching an evangelistic program in Ohio which could "sweep the state with Christ's redemptive power."

But, he said, individual Christians must be possessed by a "redemptive zeal" if the program is to succeed.

Bishop Werner spoke over 39 radio stations to an estimated audience of four million, including many congregations in Methodist churches.

"It will have to begin with you," he said in the transcribed Lenten message. "It cannot happen aside from you. How are you going to wir persons from a meaningless life, unless your life is truly meaningful and truly consecrated?"

COME DISCOVER POWER STEERING TODAY . . . AND THESE GREAT CHRYSLER FEATURES, TOO!

180 V-8 Horsepower, even on non-premium fuel . . . The Security of Power Brakes . . . Driver-Controlled Automatic Fluid Transmission . . . The Rough-Road Stability of Oriflow Ride . . . The Protection of Fully Waterproof Ignition.

You'll never know what she means till you try Chrysler's Full-Time Power Steering yourself! Even other cars with so-called power steering don't offer as much new safety and ease as she gets!

On every turn, hydraulic power does 4/5 of her work, her hand does only 1/5! On every turn, she turns her wheel 1/3 less distance than other cars! At every instant, turning or not, her hands have 5 times her former power to hold and control her car's front wheels!

She eases into parking places you wouldn't even try. She slips through traffic with the precision of a watch. She breezes over bad roads with never a feel of wheel fight, car under control as never before!

She can start in the morning and drive into the night with never a hint of shoulder strain . . . with the same wonderful "wheel feel" and safety in every mile!

Come try this amazing new steering yourself. We promise you never felt anything like it!

Pirates Lose By 48-45

Score To Marion Saints

Pickaway County's 1951-52 basketball activities were brought to an end Saturday afternoon when its last entry in district "B" tournament play in Westerville was wiped out.

Pickaway Township eagers were eliminated from the district tournament Saturday afternoon by Marion St. Mary's, second "B" club in the state.

But the Pickaway Pirate defeat did not come before the local eagers had moved to within a whisker of knocking off the powerful Saints.

Marion's Saints booted the Pirates out of the tourney by posting a narrow 48-45 victory over the locals.

Pickaway, third-ranking club in this year's county tournament, had earned a crack at the rugged Saint crew last Tuesday night when it posted a 72-63 win over Berlin. The Pirates were this county's last hope for court honors in district play.

IN THE PICKAWAY-Marion contest, the Pirates fell to a 19-11 deficit in the first frame, although Pirate Marksman Vic Pontius snapped the ball through the bucket three straight times opening the second quarter to cut the lead down to 19-17.

Darling Wins Big 10 Cage Scoring Toga

CHICAGO, March 3.—Iowa's Chuck Darling has clinched the Big Ten basketball scoring title in record-breaking style, and the race for second place will be settled Monday night.

Paul Ebert, Ohio State sophomore, scored 24 points against Wisconsin Saturday in his final game to post 300 for the campaign.

Carl McNulty, Purdue senior, has 275 points in 13 games and needs 26 Monday night against Michigan to beat out Ebert. He got 30 against Illinois Saturday.

Darling added 23 in the Northwestern game to run his 13 game total to 330. He has broken the season record of 277, the three-year and four-year records, the average-per-game mark and the record number of field goals for a season.

Darling has 86 free throws and by collecting 14 more Monday night could claim all major scoring marks in the Big Ten.

Ty Cobb received $50 a month when he played for Anniston, Ala., at the age of 17 in 1904.

Spivey Denied Berth With Kentucky '5

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 3.—Hopes of Big Bill Spivey to be reinstated as a University of Kentucky basketball player were dashed Sunday night when the athletic board of the university banned him permanently from its eligibility list.

With Spivey's hopes went those of the Wildcat cage team that the seven-foot Georgian, an All-American center, would be able to play in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament.

The athletic board said, in the course of a lengthy statement: "We feel compelled to say that it is our unanimous opinion, at this time, that Spivey was implicated in a conspiracy to fix Kentucky basketball games during the 1950-51 season."

The board said there was evidence to indicate this occurred during the Sugar Bowl tournament in New Orleans in December, 1950. Spivey has denied repeatedly that he was guilty of any wrongdoing.

Three other former Kentucky players—Alex Groza, Ralph Beard and Dale Barnstable—have admitted shaving points in the National Invitational Tournament in Madison Square Garden in 1949. They are scheduled to be sentenced March 28.

Jim Russell will have to show some hitting in camp games this spring to be retained as a reserve outfielder by the Brooklyn Dodgers. He failed to hit in 13 trips to the plate last season.

Sokolsky's These Days

country, Americans choose their own officials and in the debate over issues and men, a freedom of expression is often tolerated which ordinarily is regarded as outside the bounds of propriety. It is customary that such debates and even the election itself leave no personal enmities. Men send each other congratulatory telegrams, shake hands, and often continue their personal friendships.

General MacArthur's statement on her personal friendship for General Eisenhower while opposing his candidacy is typically American. Were it otherwise, we should have revolutions, not elections; we should have proscriptions, not a continuing constitutional system.

Should Senator Taft be nominated and elected, I am sure he and General Eisenhower would work together. Should General Eisenhower be nominated and elected, I am sure he would work with Senator Taft as the leader of his party in Congress.

Certainly men like General MacArthur, Harold Stassen and Earl Warren will maintain their personal friendships with each other and with Taft and Eisenhower, come what may politically.

The dirty mouth has no place in American affairs and if we all bring smears and lies into the open, they will wither. Surely, our problems in 1952 are too serious for us to tolerate a dirty campaign. And that goes for the Democrats, too.

Big Ten Race Nearing Finale

CHICAGO, March 3.—Illinois (11-1) can sew up at least a share of the Big Ten basketball title with a victory over Northwestern in Champaign Monday night.

Meanwhile, Iowa must defeat Wisconsin in Iowa City to keep in the championship running. It will be the last Big Ten game for the Hawkeyes who have an 11-2 record.
